Kaiserin Auguste Victoria Arrives After an Eventful

Voyage.

FRIGHT KILLS WOMAN.

Two Concerts on Ship, One to Raise Cash for the Living, the Other for the Dead.

Kaiserin Auguste Victoria and were buried at sea on her voyage from Haniburg which ended forty-eight hours late to-day, but she landed the same number of human beings that sailed from the other side of the ocean, for twins came to a woman in the steerage.

One of the passengers that died-a woman named Feola Stysle, left five children. She was on her way here with her little flock to join her husband, Michael, who lives in Clyde N. Y.

The death of Mrs. Stysle, according to to the steerage passengers from the south of Russia who talked to her, resulted from superstition. It appears that there is a tradition in the part of the country where the woman came from that a person seeing a peculiar red fish, quite rare in the waters there, is

Mrs. Stysle, according to her com-panions in the steerage, appeared to be n excellent health until last Friday afternoon, although the weather had been most tempestuous. She was standing by the rail with two of her children, looking into the water, when suddenly she began to scream.

Thought She Was Doomed.

To those who ran to her, inquiring, geen the red fish. Half-crazed with tershe was belped to her quarters in the steerage, and there she died early on Saturday morning. The records of ship's surgeon give the cause of death as heart disease.

other passenger who died was an known as Sandow. He was alone ship and there was none to mourn him when his body was slipped over the side. But the five children of Mrs. Stysle, who was rather a comely woman, thirty-seven years old, were disconsolate when strangers took their mother from

The plight of the children enlisted the sympathy of Mischa Elman, an eighteen-year-old Russian violinist, on his way to New York to fulfill an engagement with the Russian Symphony Orchestra at Carnegie Hall. With the ssistance of his manager, Daniel Mayer, of London, the boy musician organized a concert for the benefit of the five otherless ones. The proceeds were

My former wife might have had the delicacy to drop at least the 'lames Brown' part of the name when performing on the stage in this city. It seems that she lacks it." "Do you intend to take any legal steps looking to enjoining her from using your name?" Mr. Potter was asked.

"I don't care to discuss that," he replied. "It is a subject I do not approach with any excess of enthusiasm. At any rate I shall be in New York only a few days before going to Mexico to inspect some large cotton interests there."

The Kaiserin Augusta Victoria had a very rough voyage, encountering head seas and gales all the way across, On Dec. 4 she logged only 256 miles, and although she is ordinarily a seventeen-knot boat, her average speed on the voyage just ended was only 14.55 knots an hour.

What Diamond Figures Tell

Our diamond prices tell a story of saving. It begins in the European marts where the Lambert way of paying spot cash for everything is an exception to the rule and brings the first economy. The story continues with direct importation and hand-made mountings in the Lambert factory. It ends with the delivery to customers of the finest diamond rings and other ornaments at prices possible only when, as in our case, there is no middleman to pay.

Watches Doubly Guaranteed

The manufacturer says: "This watch is all right," but that does not satisfy us. Our own experts must examine every part of that watch, and if they refuse to O. K. it we will not try to sell it. Thus every watch bought of Lambert Brothers is doubly guaranteed. In the trade they say we are an exacting house. So we are, and hence our watch business steadily grows. our watch business steadily grows.
